AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE, April 24. Correspondence of The True Northerner.

A heavy rain last week has given vegetation of all kinds a lift into newness of life, and everything has a fine vernal appearance. The oats are nearly all sown, but as usual, the farmers here are about ten days behind those in our county, on account of the lateness of

The most interesting investigation in the Natural History work of late, is that of Mr. Strong, on the Blue Glass theory. The report consisted mostly of an abstract from Col. Pleasenton's work, which is printed on blue paper, bound in blue and sent out in blue wrappers. Col. Pleasenton endeavors to set aside nearly all of the explanations of natural phenomena as given by Newton, Davy, Agassiz, Tyndall, Huxley, and other genuine philosophers, and bases all phenomena as gravitation, life and heat upon electricity and magnetism. Of light, he says it is a material substance. coming from the sun to us, though the sun is not its source, but only acts as a reflector. The true source of light is the stars and other beavenly bodies, each of which can furnish but | 1147t3 | one element of the solar ray, as red, yellow, etc. These rays of different colors meet at the enn's surface, are reflected in a body, and give white light. Light, let it be remembered, as material, coming from the sun does not get beated because there is such a cold temperature in space between us and the sun. Heat, the form fore, does not come from the sun; but from me an offer.

Also, two good Work Horses for sale. Col., "of heat coming from the sun to the Apply to earth, why, it is well known that heat rises." He apparently and in fact does not ignore the fact that there is no up or down in space. He makes Newton a humbug if his wonderful theories be true, and there is no such thing as gravitation. To prove this, Mr. Pleasenton tells us to heat a ball of iron red hot, and place Dr. M. Mason, at same place. over it a feather, let go of it and it rises, instead of falling. "Where," he says, is "the force of gravitation." He would explain it by saying that the ball and feather have opposite kinds of electricity and hence repell each other. "Again," he says, "take an iron ball weighing five pounds, throw it into the water and it will sink"-well known before,-" make it into a sheet one sixteenth of an inch in thickness and if set edgewise upon the water it goes down, all, as the philosophers tell you, from gravitation." "Now turn up the edges of the sheet all around, so as to form a dish or boat ; place t upon the water and lo, it does not sink. Its properly called weight is not changed why properly called weight is not changed why doesn't it descend by force of gravitation?"

Enquire of C. E. GALLIGAN. Of course, be says if the opposite kinds of electricity existing between the iron and the face have opposite electricities, and repei each other. This must be so, for if it were not, the immense weight of the ocean would break the back of the earth." "First and True Love," by George Sand. author of Consuelo, is one of the most fascinating books ever written, is full of illustrations. and is just published by T. B. Peterson & of the very best makes. Also Brothers, Philadelphia. George Sand's style a "First and True Love," is noble, and beautifully rich and pure, for she has an exuberant magination, and with it a very chaste style of expression. She never indulges in declamation, and yet her sentences are exquisitely melodious and full. She leaves you at the end of one of her brief, rich, melanchoty sentences, with plenty of food for future cogitation. No one can express the charm of them ; they seem and like the sound of country bells falling sweetly and sadly upon the ear. There is hardly a woman's beart anywhere in the civilized world which has not felt the vibration of George Sand's thrilling voice in reading her works, for the yearns to do good. The popularity of her novels. Consuelo, a Love Scory, The Countess of Rudotstadt, a sequel to Consuelo, Jealously, indiana, Simon, Fanchon, the Cricket; or, La Petite Fadette. The Corsair, The Last Aldini, etc., have never been excelled by any writer. and for First and True Love, we prophecy a sale equal to Cousuelo, or any other novel ever written by this popular author. First and True ove is published in a large octavo volume, paper cover, with the edge cut open all round, price seventy-five cents, and is for sale by all ooksellers : or copies of it will be sent to any one, to any place, at once, on their remitting the price of it in a letter, to the Publishers P.
